WALLSYSTEMS

Michael Anastassiades

Description

After last year's great success, Jack returns with a range expanded by new structures, finishes and modules. In addition to the clean vertical floor to ceiling upright, Anastassiades has designed a new rod to be fixed to the wall, making Jack suitable for all those spaces that cannot provide the vertical anchorage for a bookcase. Together with the new structure (which can reach up to 330 cm in height), the growing family of elements have been combined to provide new, deeper shelves, storage elements such as drawers and flap doors. The precise technical solutions for the flap doors include an interesting cable-rolling system and a single elegant hinge that crosses the door along its length. All the elements are available in black and white, to which Canaletto walnut is added as an option for the tops and storage units and four oak finishes: light, grey, black and smoked. With these new additions, Jack is becoming a contemporary classic and a platform for countless stories and styles.
